

What color of light do you like? If it were Christmas, we might say green or red or white or blue. But what color of white light do you like best? Do you like daylight, soft white, or bright-white? Do you like fluorescent or incandescent? Not all lights look the same. Fluorescent bulbs tend to be harsher. LEDs may look blue-ish. Some light bulbs can no longer be made legally, because the government says they're not efficient enough.

I hope God doesn't run an efficiency test on us as Christians. That thought occurred to me in hearing again the words of Jesus to His disciples, "You are the light of the world." How much light have we shined lately, compared to the energy God invests in us? While that question may make us squirm a little bit, God's Word today is really good news. It doesn't say we should be light, or we must shine brighter, or else God will replace us. It helps us see that we who follow Jesus also brighten up the world.

Jesus had just described how blessed are those who have faith in Him. Now, He talks about how bright we are. When God created the world, the first command was "Let there be light" (Gen 1:3). Three days later, He created the sun and moon and stars to provide light by day and by night. God is turning the lights on anew in Jesus. The sun and moon are still doing their jobs, of course, but there's a job they can't do. When a person is going the wrong way, we say we hope he or she will see the light. They might be in darkness in the middle of the day.

If a room is dark, there are lots of ways to bring light to it. We can open the shades or curtains if it's daytime. We can flip a switch and let electricity light the room. We can light a candle, letting a match do the job. We can carry a lantern or just use the flashlight on our phone!

There's only one way to pierce the darkness of sin and unbelief. God turns the lights on by bringing us to trust in Jesus. Jesus is the Light of the world, & this Light scatters that darkness. When Jesus said to the disciples "follow me," His Word turned on the lights for them. They were changed.

And Jesus changes us. In Baptism, we are taken out of the kingdom of darkness. We are made followers of Jesus, who is the Light of the World. Ephesians 5:8 says, "For at one time you were darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Walk as children of light."

Light can sometimes be painful. Have you ever been woken up from a deep sleep by a bright light? How does that feel? It hurts! "Turn it off!" we might yell or grumble. That was how many reacted to Jesus when they heard Him speak. Sin loves darkness. No wonder many crimes don't happen in broad daylight, but at night, or in the shadows.

Jesus had a different plan to drive out darkness. Amazingly and tragically, to turn on the lights for us meant that Jesus, the Light of the World, would be snuffed out like a candle. "He came to his own, and his own people did not receive him" (John 1:11). The powers of darkness of the world tried to snuff out Jesus.

On Good Friday, it looked like they'd succeeded. His lifeless body was laid in a cold, dark tomb. But in the bright light of Easter, Jesus threw open the door of grave and death! He's opened wide the doors and windows to our graves, too, promising that we will live, even though we die (Jn 11:25)! We will dwell with Him in eternal light forever (Rev 21:23)!

But forever may be a long time from now. And forever was not the focus for Jesus on this particular day. "Light Living" means living now in the light of Jesus. Light Living means living out what we really are: forgiven children of God. Our lives are designed to have a huge impact in the world.

Followers of Jesus don't just believe differently than others; we live differently, too. Truth is, if we can't be easily distinguished from unbelievers, it's either because they're becoming like us or we're behaving like them. If the latter case is true, there's as much wrong with us as with them. "Let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works," Jesus said (Mt 5:16). Following Jesus is about more than personal enlightenment. Shades in the windows are good for privacy, but don't draw down the shades of your faith as you live through the week. A covered lamp is a waste of light, and so is concealed faith.

After all, "You are the light of the world." That is a blessing and a responsibility. Following Jesus is not just for our personal benefit. It calls us to be the hope of the world. It's easy for us to find fault with society. It's common for us to complain that things are going from bad to worse and that evil seems to be spreading everywhere. Without a doubt, Jesus could see that also in His time. But instead of handwringing and complaining, Jesus one-by-one brought people out of darkness into the light. Then, the ones He brought to the light of faith He sent to make holes in the darkness wherever they went. God's people are God's force in the world, a force to be reckoned with.

Have you ever flown in an airplane at night? All you can see of communities and homes below are the points of light. From many miles away, that light identifies the town and the home. And that's pretty much the same as God's plan for calling us to follow Jesus.

Our God says, "Let there be light where my people live." Peter says it well: "Keep your conduct . . . honorable, so that when they speak against you as evildoers, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day of visitation" (1 Pet 2:12).

Today we have all kinds of "light" foods and drinks with less calories, like my favorite, Diet Coke. But Light Living as Jesus described is not about less, but more. For those who are in Christ, there is more joy, more power, more hope, and more purpose for living. The Word that brought the light of faith to us is also the Word that enables us to bring that light to the world.

The electricity that causes lights to shine is invisible until it stirs up and excites electrons and particles that are otherwise invisible. Faith is invisible to people until it brings light by stirring up Christians to love God and to love people. Faith that saves also energizes.

And how does our light shine? Not through heroic acts or feats of superhuman strength. Not through brilliant insights or miraculous powers. But by following Jesus, living like He did. Jesus came to fulfill God's Law, which shows concrete love for other people. And though we do it imperfectly, loving our God and loving people makes faith visible to others.

I think most people would consider a mission trip to a foreign country such as Haiti to build a school a good work. But so is clearing your neighbors' sidewalk, or taking your kids to church, or having devotions with them, or holding your temper in check, or not lying, or forgiving, or confessing your sins and asking for forgiveness instead of blaming or excusing. This shares the light God's given to you.

The light of Christ shines in the ordinary life of a Christian, but we aren't called to live in an ordinary way. Because the Spirit of God is moving us, and Christ is dwelling in us, Christians can be extraordinary husbands and wives, parents and children, remarkable neighbors and employees, great friends, citizens, and more.

The disciples were often dim when it came to reflecting the love of Jesus, and so are we. Thanks be to God He is patient and does not quickly discard us when we fail. He leads us to repent, to renounce the ways of sin and darkness, to be forgiven for the sake of Jesus' cross, and to strive anew to follow him. When we love as God loves, people will take notice. That may well lead others to see a light of hope at the end of the tunnel of darkness. That light is Jesus, and we should be happy to give Him the credit. We can do no good thing apart from him.

Light bulbs come in all different kinds, and Christians do, too, but whatever your shape or color, because of Jesus, you are the light of the world and will dwell in eternal light. May someone this week, or this day, see the light of Jesus in your Light Living and give thanks to God. Amen.
